Raster.Design.2016.Q: How to get subcategory id of the category name in laravel 5.2 I have two tables category and subcategory I want the subcategory name based on category id SELECT * FROM subcategory,category where subcategory.category_id=category.id I want to get the data like the image A: From the docs, it looks like you should be able to use Laravel's relation functionality to do this. For example: $subcategories = Category::with('subcategories')->where('id', $category->id)->get(); This will create a Category model instance, with a hasMany relation with the Subcategory model. If you use with(), it'll add a relationship to the category object. In the above, you can then access the subcategories relation on the category object: $category->subcategories; You could also use the relationship name as the value of your relationship, if you prefer. $subcategories = Category::with('subcategories')->where('id', $category->id)->get(); $category->subcategories; This will create a Category object with the subcategories relationship added to it. As stated, if you want to use the subcategory table, you'd be able to do something similar: Category::where('id', $category->id)->with('subcategories')->get(); You can then loop through the relationships and access them like so: foreach($category->subcategories as $ 2d92ce491b
