Category:Cancer screening Category:Physical examinationLOS ANGELES – This postseason has been a night and day story. After 12 years with the St. Louis Blues, the Los Angeles Kings' season opener at Staples Center on Thursday night was the first game in which the Kings played without an all-time great captain. "Losing Sid the Kid was tough, but this year we felt that losing him was a good thing," said Kings' right wing Dwight King, who has been filling in admirably for the Stanley Cup champion captain. "We've got bigger fish to fry and we're not resting on any laurels. I think we all realized that. Losing S.K. meant we all had to step up our games." King himself and Jeff Carter were in a position to be rested when the Kings returned home for Game 5 of their first-round series against the San Jose Sharks. L.A. was just 2-3 in their first six postseason games with Carter and King on the ice, but the Kings had won four straight games with just Dwight King and Tyler Toffoli on the ice. With Carter and Anze Kopitar getting their rest, the Kings took advantage of that opportunity and went on a dominant 5-1 run to seize a three-games-to-one lead in the series. "That's the challenge we're facing," Kings' head coach Darryl Sutter said. "Having those top-six guys in the lineup makes a difference. Sometimes they're rested. Sometimes they're not. "But that's the whole story of the playoffs. It's about the players." After being rested for Game 5, Carter is back in the lineup for Game 6 and will play his 200th career postseason game on Thursday. Kopitar is also back in the lineup. It's the first time the Kings have played the first three games at home in any series since they had L.A. All-Star Jeff Carter and Anze Kopitar out of the lineup for Games 1-3 against San Jose in their first-round series last year. Carter and Kopitar have been in every playoff game this year. "You have to look at it as a good thing that they're not on the ice. ♦
