import login credentials, export password lists or search through the whole database. If you want to protect the database with a password, then you need to use a database which is password protected. The database you are using should be encrypted. A simple approach would be to provide your database password during installation of LoginCode. Set up a database in LoginCode LoginCode can be set up at Windows start. LoginCode launches automatically when Windows starts. The browser menu bar is removed. You can create a new database, use an existing one or use a database that has been set up in other programs. In all cases you will be guided through the setup step by step, to make sure that you do not mess up anything. To create a new database, choose "Make a new database" when you reach the main menu. A wizard-like assistant will guide you in the setup procedure. Cleaning up You can clean up LoginCode from its settings and data by pressing the "X" button in the upper right corner of the screen. Importing LoginCredentials Import LoginCredentials from a browser, into a new or existing database. LoginCredentials is an HTML form containing the credentials of the websites you want to log in at. The HTML code will look like this. You will need to remove all the sensitive fields.
