Perfect for use in and for the following industries: DIRECT MAIL MARKETING E-mail marketing campaigns Bulk Email Campaigns List-building campaigns Drip campaigns Email marketing applications Direct Mail Marketing Direct mail and email marketing campaigns can both be effective marketing strategies. However, you need to keep in mind the differences between these two marketing methods. List-building campaigns A list-building campaign is a campaign that is performed to build a large mailing list. This can be done by sending out emails to prospects, or by visiting their website and following a link to a survey. The best way to build a mailing list is to sell physical or digital products. This will build brand recognition and can be beneficial to your business. If you are interested in list-building, you need to develop a relationship with a list-building company. They will be able to help you out. If you have a website, you can use Google Analytics or other paid services to track the people who visit your site. You can use this information to create a mailing list. This is what we mean by list-building. Drip campaigns Drip campaigns are methods of email marketing which is time-sensitive. This means that it is going to get sent out on a certain schedule. People need to be told when to do certain tasks to make
